Biography

Gerald Gillespie joined the Stanford University faculty in 1974, teaching in German studies, comparative literature, and humanities programs. A recipient of Fulbright, Guggenheim, Mellon, and NEH fellowships, he has published numerous books and articles and served on the editorial boards of several journals, including comparative literature and German Life and Letters.

Scope and Content

These papers document Gillespie's professional career, largely from his years at Stanford University. The papers include correspondence, memoranda, reports, minutes, articles, papers, course materials, syllabi, and other items. They are arranged in seven groupings: alpha files (1964-1991), Stanford departmental files (1977-1999), Academic Council Committee on Libraries records (1988-1990), SUNY Binghamton files (1964-1974), University of Southern California correspondence (1961-1966), German Life and Letters files (1989-1997), and oversize materials.

The alpha files pertain to his own career and include correspondence, notes, typescript papers, reports, and other materials. Stanford departmental files pertain to the Departments of German Studies and Comparative Literature and include correspondence, memos, articles, syllabi, minutes, questionnaires, and other items. Academic Council Committee on Libraries records reflect his service on the committee and include agendas, minutes, reports, memoranda and correspondence. The SUNY Binghamton and University of Southern California files pertain to his teaching positions before he joined the Stanford faculty and contain primarily correspondence. The German Life and Letters files contain correspondence and typescript articles submitted for publication, with some minutes and reports. The oversize materials are largely posters and notices.
