Administrative History

The basic function of the committee was to present on campus a wide variety of cultural programs and lectures to benefit students as well as the university community at large.

The committee had its origins in a committee appointed by President Benjamin Ide Wheeler to oversee the management of the Greek Theatre after its construction in 1903. The chair of the committee was William Dallam Armes, professor of English. After his death in 1918, Samuel Hume was appointed as director of the Greek Theatre. Hume resigned in 1923, and there was a return to a management committee, which was in effect until the creation of a more professional theater management organization, Cal Performances, in about 1980.

During this period the name of the committee: the Committee on Music and Drama, the Committee on Drama, Lectures and Music, and finally the Committee for Arts and Lectures.

Scope and Content

This collection includes administrative and financial materials pertaining to the work of the committee as well as files on individual events presented on campus. The Sam Hume correspondence contains both administrative and personal correspondence.

 Box 10-16 Series 3: Sam Hume correspondence, ca. 1918-1924
Scope and Content Note

These files, not integrated with either the administrative or event files, contain the correspondence of Hume not only as director of the Greek Theatre, including university administrative memoranda, but also some correspondence relating to his activities in the theater world. Some of the names here duplicate those in the event files, while others, like Eugene O'Neill and Sidney Coe Howard reflect Hume's personal correspondence with literary figures of the day. Some correspondence reflects Hume's interest in promoting an appreciation for drama at the high school level in California. A few files contain correspondence with William Dallam Armes before Hume's tenure, and one file contains later correspondence.
